

MARTHA DIAMOND

BOWDOIN COLLEGE MUSEUM OF ART BRUNSWICK, MAINE 1988

This catalogue accompanies an exhibition of the same name at the Bowdoin College
Museum of Art
from January 29 to March 24, 1988.

COVER:
High C, 1982
oil on canvas
84 x 56 inches

PRINTING BY Penmor Lithographers,
Lewiston, Maine

DESIGN BY Michael Mahan Graphics,
Bath, Maine

ISBN
0-916606-18-X

Library of Congress
Catalog Card Number
87-73462

Copyright ©1988
by the President and Trustees of
Bowdoin College
All rights reserved

Heavy Duty, 1983
oil on canvas
96 x 48 inches

MARTHA DIAMOND

BOWDOIN COLLEGE MUSEUM OF ART BRUNSWICK, MAINE 1988

MARTHA DIAMOND

Martha Diamond is an urban romantic, streetwise and wide-eyed, an artist enraptured by the utter marvel of Manhattan. A native New Yorker, she is still struck by the place. It is the dominant theme of her art, seizing her imagination like a fever. In her paintings the city takes on the aspect of a vision. Forms and shadows of buildings loom out of a dense ether of color. The eye floats free, jerked upward by the soar of a skyscraper or plunged through girders into blue space. The city is queerly uninhabited. Here the human drama is less dramatic than the scenery.

Intentionally rough and gawky, Diamond's paintings convey the vigor and raw honesty of a first sketch. Indeed, each painting is a close translation of a smaller oil study. In both the studies and finished paintings, the factual realities are dumb-simple and not really important. The paintings are not about architecture, or specifically New York, or the "urban scene." They describe little and explain less. Yet they have a gestalt rightness, a visceral, wordless claim to truth. They linger in the mind like a retinal afterimage.

In common with other expressionist artists, Diamond relies upon the eccentric workings of imagination. She delights in the apparently random incidents of memory: a pattern of windows, a leap of space, or the eerie wash of spotlight against an office tower. On canvas she endows these incidents with poetic force: an ascending rhythm of balconies acquires the resonance of a mantra.

In one telling respect, Diamond's vision of the city is postmodern—or perhaps antimodern. At the beginning of this century artists in the avant-garde celebrated the metropolis as the heroic affirmation of the modernist spirit. They saw only reason and bright promise where today we see perplexity and dull void. In Diamond's paintings, the city seems no longer of our making but the sublimest work of Nature. Borrowing the rhetoric of romantic landscape, she invests the city with a primordial grandeur. The buildings heave up and weather into fantastic shapes. Standing on the edge, on the cornice or window sill, we are left to gape and wonder at the spectacle of it all. There is awe and mystery in these images, and a terrible silence last heard in the wilderness paintings of the Hudson River school. For this artist the city has become our wilderness.

JOHN W. COFFEY
Curator of Collections

WORKS IN THE EXHIBITION

All works in the exhibition courtesy
of Robert Miller Gallery, New York

1. Facade, 1982
oil on canvas
84 x 56 inches
2. High C, 1982
oil on canvas
84 x 56 inches
3. Parade, 1982
oil on canvas
84 x 56 inches
4. Heavy Duty, 1983
oil on canvas
96 x 48 inches
5. Central Character, 1983
oil on canvas, three parts
each part: 90 x 30 inches
6. Chicago, 1985
oil on canvas
72 x 60 inches
7. High View, 1985
oil on canvas
96 x 120 inches
8. Pale Blue Construction, 1985
oil on canvas
72 x 60 inches
9. Windows, 1985
oil on canvas
72 x 60 inches

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This exhibition continues the Bowdoin College Museum of Art's series of shows devoted to important contemporary artists associated with Maine. Martha Diamond is a New York painter who now summers on Deer Isle. Like many artists, she has found a harmony between the frenzy of Manhattan and the pastorate of coastal Maine. Nevertheless, Diamond's work is passionately urban, both in subject and sensibility, and gives us proof—if proof is needed—of the enduring vitality of the city for American artists of this century.

The exhibition has been organized by the museum's curator, John W. Coffey, who also wrote the introduction to this catalogue. Mr. Coffey has been ably assisted by the entire museum staff. Special thanks are due to Elizabeth A. Mullen '88, who assisted in the compilation of biographical material. The catalogue was edited by Susan L. Ransom and designed by Michael W. Mahan '73. Publication was supervised by Lucie G. Teegarden, associate director of public relations and publications.

Complementing this exhibition of Martha Diamond's paintings is a concurrent show of her graphic work at the Portland Museum of Art. Both shows were developed collaboratively by Mr. Coffey and Margaret K. Burchenal, former director of education at the Portland museum.

The museum is grateful to the artist's New York dealer, Robert Miller, and his staff for arranging loans. Finally we offer our thanks and deep appreciation to Martha Diamond.

CLIFTON C. OLDS
*Acting Director,
Bowdoin College Museum of Art
Edith Cleaves Barry
Professor of the History and Criticism of Art*

Central Character, 1983
oil on canvas, three parts
each part: 90 x 30 inches

High View, 1985
oil on canvas
96 x 120 inches

1981 Art on Paper, Weatherspoon Art Gallery, University of North Carolina at Greensboro, North Carolina

Paintings, Brooke Alexander, Inc., New York
Exchanges III, Arts for Living Center, New York

1980 Almost Abstract, Boston College Art Gallery, Newton, Massachusetts

New York/New Work, Delahunty Gallery, Dallas, Texas

Drawing of a Different Nature, Portland Center for the Visual Arts, Portland, Oregon

1979 New Publications/Acquisitions, Brooke Alexander, Inc., New York

New York Artists: New Sensibilities, 22 Wooster Gallery, New York

Sixth British International Print Biennale, Bradford Art Galleries and Museums, Bradford, England

New Work by Martha Diamond, Margo Margolis, Rodney Ripps, Brooke Alexander, Inc., New York

1978 Thick Paint, Renaissance Society at the University of Chicago, Illinois

New Editions, Brooke Alexander, Inc., New York

Critics' Choice, Joe and Emily Lowe Art Gallery, Syracuse University, New York

1976 Paintings '75, '76, '77, Sarah Lawrence College Art Gallery, Bronxville, New York

New Abstract Objects, Hallwalls, Buffalo, New York

1974 Tenth Anniversary Exhibition, Aldrich Museum of Contemporary Art, Ridgefield, Connecticut

Six Artists, Julian Pretto Gallery, New York

1973 Contemporary Reflections, Aldrich Museum of Contemporary Art, Ridgefield, Connecticut

MARTHA DIAMOND

SELECTED BIBLIOGRAPHY

1986 "Prints and Photographs Published." Print Collector's Newsletter 17 (March/April 1986): 16.

Holland Cotter. "Martha Diamond." Flash Art 123 (Summer 1985): 55.

"Prints and Photographs Published." Print Collector's Newsletter 16 (July/August 1985): 100.

Stephen Westfall. "Martha Diamond." Arts 60 (September 1985): 41-42.

Ronny Cohen. "The Medium Isn't the Message." Artnews 84 (October 1985): 74-81.

Edmund Leites. "Martha Diamond at Brooke Alexander." Art in America 73 (November 1985): 166.

1984 M. Matthews. "Landscape Painting at Night: Contemporary Artists Look at the Evening Skies." American Artist 48 (February 1984): 66-67.

Alan Wintermute. "Martha Diamond: Brooke Alexander." Flash Art 116 (March 1984): 41.

"Martha Diamond at Brooke Alexander." Arts 58 (April 1984): 35-36.

Jackie Brody. "Martha Diamond, Monotypes, 1982-84." Print Collector's Newsletter 15 (May/June 1984): 59.

Barbara Moynihan. "Artist's Loft Two: Martha Diamond." Domus 651 (June 1984): 42-43.

Grace Glueck. "The Triptych Lives on in Modern Variations." New York Times, July 1, 1984: H 23.

1983 "Museum of Modern Art: Prints from Blocks: Gauguin to Now." Print Collector's Newsletter 14 (May/June 1983): 68-69.

Steven H. Madoff. "Riding the Rebounding Art Market." Money 12 (September 1983): 84-86.

Grace Glueck. "Martha Diamond." New York Times, December 9, 1983: C 26.

Kim Levin. "Martha Diamond/Joseph Necht-vatal." Village Voice, December 27, 1983.

1982 Vivien Raynor. "Gallery Group." New York Times, June 25, 1982: C 21.

Stephen Westfall. "Martha Diamond's Urban Vision." Arts 57 (October 1982): 118-19.

Roberta Smith. "art." Village Voice, November 9, 1982.

Grace Glueck. "Artists' Artists." Artnews 81 (November 1982): 95.

Katharine Howe. "Intuitive Anarchy: Five Neo-Expressionist Painters." Images & Issues (November/December 1982).

Gerrit Henry. "Martha Diamond at Brooke Alexander." Art in America 70, December 1982: 124.

1981 Deborah C. Phillips. "Martha Diamond." Arts 55 (January 1981): 28-29.

John Russell. "Martha Diamond." New York Times, April 17, 1981: C 18.

Vivien Raynor. "Paintings." New York Times, August 14, 1981: C 18.

Rene Ricard. "Not About Julian Schnabel." Artforum 19 (Summer 1981): 74-80.

1980 Laurie Johnston. "Bus-Borne Prints: Mass Artistry in Motion." New York Times, February 18, 1980: B 3.

1979 Allen Ellenzweig. "Three Artists: Rodney Ripps, Martha Diamond, and D. Jack Solomon." Arts 53 (April 1979): 100-101.

Thomas Lawson. "Martha Diamond, Margo Margolis, Rodney Ripps at Brooke Alexander." Art in America 67 (October 1979): 125-126.

1978 Lee Edwards. "Martha Diamond." Arts 53 (December 1978): 7.

1976 Carter Ratcliff. "The Paint Thickens." Artforum 14 (Summer 1976): 43-47.

Allen Ellenzweig. "Rodney Ripps/Martha Diamond." Arts 51 (October 1976): 22.

Allen Ellenzweig. "Martha Diamond." Arts 51 (December 1976): 30-31.

MARTHA DIAMOND

Martha Diamond is an urban romantic, streetwise and wide-eyed, an artist enraptured by the utter marvel of Manhattan. A native New Yorker, she is still struck by the place. It is the dominant theme of her art, seizing her imagination like a fever. In her paintings the city takes on the aspect of a vision. Forms and shadows of buildings loom out of a dense ether of color. The eye floats free, jerked upward by the soar of a skyscraper or plunged through girders into blue space. The city is queerly uninhabited. Here the human drama is less dramatic than the scenery.

Intentionally rough and gawky, Diamond's paintings convey the vigor and raw honesty of a first sketch. Indeed, each painting is a close translation of a smaller oil study. In both the studies and finished paintings, the factual realities are dumb-simple and not really important. The paintings are not about architecture, or specifically New York, or the "urban scene." They describe little and explain less. Yet they have a gestalt rightness, a visceral, wordless claim to truth. They linger in the mind like a retinal afterimage.

In common with other expressionist artists, Diamond relies upon the eccentric workings of imagination. She delights in the apparently random incidents of memory: a pattern of windows, a leap of space, or the eerie wash of spotlight against an office tower. On canvas she endows these incidents with poetic force: an ascending rhythm of balconies acquires the resonance of a mantra.

In one telling respect, Diamond's vision of the city is postmodern—or perhaps antimodern. At the beginning of this century artists in the avant-garde celebrated the metropolis as the heroic affirmation of the modernist spirit. They saw only reason and bright promise where today we see perplexity and dull void. In Diamond's paintings, the city seems no longer of our making but the sublimest work of Nature. Borrowing the rhetoric of romantic landscape, she invests the city with a primordial grandeur. The buildings heave up and weather into fantastic shapes. Standing on the edge, on the cornice or window sill, we are left to gape and wonder at the spectacle of it all. There is awe and mystery in these images, and a terrible silence last heard in the wilderness paintings of the Hudson River school. For this artist the city has become our wilderness.

JOHN W. COFFEY
Curator of Collections

WORKS IN THE EXHIBITION

All works in the exhibition courtesy
of Robert Miller Gallery, New York

1. Facade, 1982
oil on canvas
84 x 56 inches
2. High C, 1982
oil on canvas
84 x 56 inches
3. Parade, 1982
oil on canvas
84 x 56 inches
4. Heavy Duty, 1983
oil on canvas
96 x 48 inches
5. Central Character, 1983
oil on canvas, three parts
each part: 90 x 30 inches
6. Chicago, 1985
oil on canvas
72 x 60 inches
7. High View, 1985
oil on canvas
96 x 120 inches
8. Pale Blue Construction, 1985
oil on canvas
72 x 60 inches
9. Windows, 1985
oil on canvas
72 x 60 inches

BOWDOIN COLLEGE
MUSEUM OF ART

KATHARINE J. WATSON
Director (on leave of absence)

CLIFTON C. OLDS
Acting Director

SUZANNE K. BERGERON
Secretary to the Director

JOHN W. COFFEY
Curator of Collections

HELEN S. DUBÉ
Clerk/Typist

MARILYN H. DWYER
Receptionist/Shop Buyer

JOSÉ L. RIBAS '76
Technician

HENRIETTA M. TYE
Registrar

MARION M. WINKELBAUER
Receptionist/Shop Buyer

ROXLYN T. YANOK
Administrative Assistant to the Director

Student Assistants:

STEVEN D. ALBERT '88

JENNIFER S. EDWARDS '89

ELLEN B. FREEDMAN '90

ANTOINETTE E. KAVANAUGH '90

ELIZABETH S. MCGHEE '89

ELIZABETH A. MULLEN '88

JULIANA V. ROBERTSON '87

ANGUS A. WALL '88